September primaries:
Who's running for what?

By Don Staruk

Andover residents will vote next month for Democrat and Republican candidates for office, including state Senate, governor and U.S. Senate. Primary voters will determine who will run in November's general election.

The State Primary is Tuesday, Sept. 20. Polls in Andover will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.

The general election is Tuesday, Nov. 8. The last day to register to vote or change parties for the primary was last Tuesday, Aug. 23. Residents have until Tuesday, Oct. 11, to register to vote in the general election.

In the races closest to home for Andover residents, state Senator John D. O'Brien Jr., D-Andover, has a three-way fight in the primary for the Democratic nomination for state Senate, but it appears that Rep. Gary Coon, R-Andover, is getting a free ride back to the Statehouse, all the way through November. Other candidates for re-election this year include U.S. Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Hyannis, and Gov. William F. Weld.

The Democrats and Republicans are the only parties having primaries this time around. The only other recognized party in

Peddlers: Rules of going door-to-door

By Don Staruk

Hawkers and peddlers, door-to-door solicitors and others selling products and services, or pushing a cause house-to-house, have few or no restrictions on where they can go or when they can ring doorbells or knock on doors in Andover.

The issue came up this week after a resident complained to the Townsman that a man going door-to-door this past weekend selling a cleaning product became pushy. The salesman allegedly refused to show any sort of permit or identification, and was not wearing any sort of uniform to identify his company or business. Another resident, a senior citizen, had also been intimidated by the same salesman and questions came up regarding what restrictions there are on solicitors in residential neighborhoods, when they can solicit and what licenses, permits or approvals they need.

And according to Andover police,

Neighbors seek a say in expansion of Rec Park

By Neil Fater

While discussing their concerns about the plan to expand Recreation Park last week, neighbors of the park witnessed a two-car accident at the intersection of Woburn and Abbot streets and Porter Road. They watched as one of the cars flipped over, causing its 17-year-old driver to be hospitalized, according to Richard Sumberg, of 4 Woburn Street.

The traffic issue is just one concern . . .

Concern that increased use of the park will increase the accident rate at that corner, an intersection that is less than half a mile from the Rec Park entrance, was one of several issues that neighbors of the park said they discussed that night.

"They happen there all the time, all the time," said Alison Watts, of 5 Woburn Street.

Ms. Watts suggests creating a three-way stop in place of the single stop sign at the end of Porter Road, or installing a flashing traffic light.

However, Lt. Phillip Froburg of the Andover Police Department said that if the accidents are caused by traffic violations, then the addition

Inventive proposals may expand soccer fields

But soccer program will continue struggle for foreseeable future

By Neil Fater

Though it is probably best not to disturb them with this news, in just two short weeks approximately 5,200 students in Andover will return to the public schools' classrooms. A full third of them will also return to the soccer field – assuming there is space.

Because of the Andover soccer program's gargantuan growth, the conditions of its most frequently used fields are sub-par and scheduling these fields is increasingly difficult.

"There's something like 1,700 kids per season playing ball," said Jack Holmes, a board member of the Andover Soccer Association, "and we don't have the fields."

Because school-affiliated teams are given priority on the school fields, the ASA has used two Phillips Academy fields, a Merrimack College practice field and a Pike field, according to Mr. Holmes.

The most commonly used areas are the fields known as upper and lower Shawsheen and the Chandler Road field, built on part of the old town dump site.

The town built the Chandler Road fields in the mid-1980s and leased them "for about a buck a year," the last two years to the ASA and the town Little League, which are responsible for maintaining the fields, according to Jim Bamford, town forester.

However, Daniel Cote, ASA president, described the Shawsheen fields as "just horrendous" and said the program would have to shut down to improve the fields.

"Those fields, I'm going to say, are the worst in the county," said Mr. Holmes.

A spectator standing on one end of the fields has difficulty seeing the other end because of blowing sand, according to Mr. Holmes.

"That tells you that these are fields that are dust bowls," he said. "These fields go pretty much non-stop and there's no alternative."

Snow was dumped in the upper Shawsheen area following the blizzard of 1978 and during the winter of '82-'83 after the usual dumping ground for snow and sand on High Street was filled, according to Mr. Bamford.

"The good news is there's a lot of things about the town trying to promote the playing fields," said Mr. Cote. "The town really needs, and to their credit will have, two new soccer fields. But my feeling is, those will get chewed up, too."

> 'Those fields, I'm going to say, are the worst in the county.'
> Jack Holmes, talking about Chandler Road fields.

School officials included one new soccer field at both South and Sanborn schools as part of the school construction project. Yet ASA members worry that these two will not be sufficient.

"The fields that they're building on at the schools," said Mr. Cote,"are not going to alleviate the problem."

Mr. Cote said he examined using or raising funds to add additional fields onto the existing South and Sanborn projects, but the price wasn't right.

"I know that there is land available at both South and Sanborn," he said. "I'd love to do it with the school program, but we don't have $100,000. But the town has been very cooperative."

There may be other options. A Billerica resident told Mr. Cote that the National Guard may be willing to clear land for free to train their workers on heavy machinery, and Mr. Cote plans to look for qualified Andover people to donate time or machinery.

Meanwhile, Mr. Bamford suggested that soccer fields may be included in the Recreation Park expansion project. If new fields are created, the upper Shawsheen field could be shut down and converted into two fields, he said. When those fields are ready for use, the north-south structured lower Shawsheen can then be converted into three east-west fields. This will cause some problems with sunlight.

"Ideally you have it north-south, but given the choice of no field or (additional) fields, people will always take the field no matter what the orientation," said Mr. Bamford. "We have always been prepared to rebuild upper and lower Shawsheen. It hinges on two things." First, the ASA must be able to do without the fields for a year and, second, the town must appropriate the necessary money.

"Truthfully, we're talking a considerable amount of years for this to happen," said Mr. Bamford.

Judge John J. Irwin Jr. named to former John Fenton position

In an effort to ensure a continuity of leadership and management in the operations of the Trial Court, the chief justice and associate justices of the Supreme Judicial Court have announced the appointment of the Hon. John J. Irwin Jr. as the new chief justice for administration and management of the Trial Court, effective Sept. 1.

The justices received with much regret a letter of resignation from the current Chief Justice for Administration and Management, John E. Fenton Jr., of Andover who is leaving the judiciary to become the new dean of Suffolk University Law School Sept. 1.

Chief Justice Irwin will serve the remainder of Chief Justice Fenton's present term, which expires Feb. 11, 1998. Chief Justice Irwin has been the chief justice for the Superior Court Department of the Trial Court since November 1993.

Chief Justice Fenton has pledged his full support and assistance to Chief Justice Irwin to provide smooth transition of authority. Chief Justice Fenton appointed Chief Justice Irwin last year to the position of Superior Court Chief Justice. Chief Justice Irwin will, in turn, be responsible for the appointment of a new chief justice of the Superior Court.

Fire Department seeks photographs, artifacts

The Andover Fire Department is beginning to compile a commemorative history book of its department. The special publication will include the department's history with accounts of major fires, equipment and stations, both past and present, and photographs of active and retired members. Most of all, this book will portray what it means to be a member of the Andover Fire Department and the pride its members share in their common goals to serve their neighbors and community.

The hardbound, leatherette edition will be printed on high quality glossy paper with approximately 60 pages of information and photos. The anticipated delivery date is May 1995.

If any active or retired department members have photographs, artifacts or ideas that would benefit this project, contact Chief Harold Hayes. Any photos or other items will be returned upon completion of the book.

The department encourages retirees to stop by the Public Safety Center on North Main Street to help the committee identify unknown persons in photos. Anyone who would like to participate as a member of the committee should contact a present member.

State has mortgages at 6.99 percent

State Sen. John O'Brien, D-Andover, and Rep. Gary M. Coon, R-Andover, announced that as of Aug. 18 lenders have accepted applications for 30-year MHFA mortgages at a fixed rate of 6.99 percent. Most of the money will be offered through MHFA's General Lending Program with half the money being set aside for veterans, minority the physically disabled and low-income borrowers. Loans will also be available through other programs, such as the Homebuyer Counseling, Acquisition Set-aside Program (ASAP) and Neighborhood Rehabilitation Program.

Interested parties should call Kathy Burns, MHFA, at (617) 451-3480, Ext. 407.

Legislators set aside funds for the Patriot

Rep. Martin T. Meehan, D-Lowell, announced that House and Senate negotiators have agreed to set aside funds for continued development of a more advanced seeker for the Patriot missile and integration of existing Patriot components into the next generation of theater missile defense systems.

"The money in this agreement lays the groundwork for Raytheon to play a significant role in the U.S. military's theater missile defense programs well into the next century," Mr. Meehan said. "Congress recognizes that we need to keep working on the Patriot even as we develop new systems based on different technologies."

Mr. Meehan was the only freshman House member on the conference panel responsible for resolving differences between the House and Senate versions of the annual defense bill. Sen. Edward M. Kennedy was the state's other representative.

The conference agreement provides $284.7 million to integrate radars and other components built by Raytheon with the ERINT missile, built by Loral, a Texas company, to produce a new generation of defenses against short- and medium-range missiles. The conferees also allocated $58.4 million for Raytheon to continue developing a new seeker for the Patriot as a hedge against problem's with the ERINT,

"The negotiators on the conference committee not only provided funding for Raytheon to help put the pieces of the new system together, they recognized the need to continue working on alternative technologies from the Patriot in case ERINT doesn't work as advertised," Mr. Meehan said. "This money will help stabilize employment at Raytheon, keep the Patriot program going in case ERINT stumbles and put the company's foot in the door for theater missile defense projects in the 21st century."

Soggy golf tourney raised funds for 350th

By Don Staruk

Despite torrential downpours Monday morning, Aug. 22, 130 hearty souls turned out for a golf tournament at Andover Country Club to benefit youth activities for the town's 350th anniversary celebration in 1996.

Golfers were scheduled to complete 18 holes, but play was called after just nine holes due to the rain. It rained so hard, and participants got so wet, nobody cared who won.

"The cards were so wet nobody could see what their scores were," said Deputy Fire Chief Charles Murnane Jr., co-chairman of the Youth Activities Committee for the 350th celebration.

But the rain turned out to be a benefit for the Youth Activities Committee. Yvon Cormier, owner of the Country Club, who was playing in one of the foursomes, learned what the event was to benefit. He saw golfers playing in the rain and decided not to charge them for the golf or the cart rentals, a cost of more than $50 each.

"He donated, specifically, his profits to the youth activities of the 350th," Deputy Murnane said. "That was just a great thing to do."

Deputy Murnane, who is co-chairman of the committee with David Lynch, said Mr. Cormier's generosity helped the group raise $12,000 to $15,000 from the event, more than $5,000 above what they were expecting to raise.

"Actually, the rain turned out to be our best friend today. That was the best payer on the course today for us," Deputy Murnane said.

One event organizers hope to sponsor during the 350th celebration is a youth soccer tournament between high-school-age teams from other Andovers in this country and from Andover, England. The extra proceeds from this week's event may make it possible to expand the events to include teams consisting of younger kids. Baseball games, a triathlon and other activities are also in the planning stage, Deputy Murnane said.

Chris Doherty helped organize Monday's event, which included a breakfast and post-play barbecue, which was held inside the club house and on the covered patio.

The rain was so heavy at times Monday that the golf carts were beginning to slide all over the course, Deputy Murnane said.

"Everybody played nine holes and we were done at about 11 a.m.," he said. "Everybody did have a good time."

And Deputy Murnane figured the right way to spend Monday afternoon, after the wet round of golf. "I was just filling up the tub to soak in it for about three hours," he said.

350th Committee has big plans

By Neil Fater

The Boston Pops may play, an international soccer tournament may kick, and a festive parade will march through Andover during 1996 in celebration of what town officials believe to be Andover's 350th anniversary.

Members of the 350th Anniversary Committee met last night, Wednesday, Aug. 24, after the Townsman went to press, to discuss the time and place of possible celebratory events for the historic anniversary.

"We've been meeting for over a year. The whole committee has spent a lot of time going over various proposals," said Virginia Lopez-Begg, a committee publicity co-chairwoman. "We don't want to miss anyone in Andover. We want them all to enjoy this birthday party."

Though last night's meeting was the first meeting since June, the committee plans to hold monthly meetings hereafter. According to Ann Constantine, fellow publicity co-chair, the committee is "still ironing out exactly what the events will be in 1996."

> 'There will be a major parade that will have groups brought in and involve everyone in Andover. The town will be decked out in full bunting.'
> Ann Constantine

But the committee will make an effort to bring the Boston Pops and a soccer team from Andover, England, to Andover, Mass., said Ms. Lopez-Begg.

Andover, Mass. was the first Andover in the United States and Ms. Lopez-Begg jokingly predicts the two Andover soccer/football teams are "going to battle to the death on the soccer field."

After hosting major events each month, the committee plans to end the celebration with a march through town that will likely be led by Jim Doherty, town moderator and chairman of the parade committee.

"There will be a major parade that will have groups brought in and involve everyone in Andover," said Ms. Constantine. "The town will be decked out in full bunting."

Members of the 350th Anniversary Committee hope to serve as an umbrella committee through which independent organizations can plan their anniversary-related activities. A centralized committee can eliminate repetition of ideas or scheduling conflicts, say the committee spokeswomen.

Ms. Constantine said the committee will make an announcement regarding the anniversary activities shortly after Labor Day, Sept. 5.

Your Dental HEALTH

by Richard D. Hopgood, D.M.D.

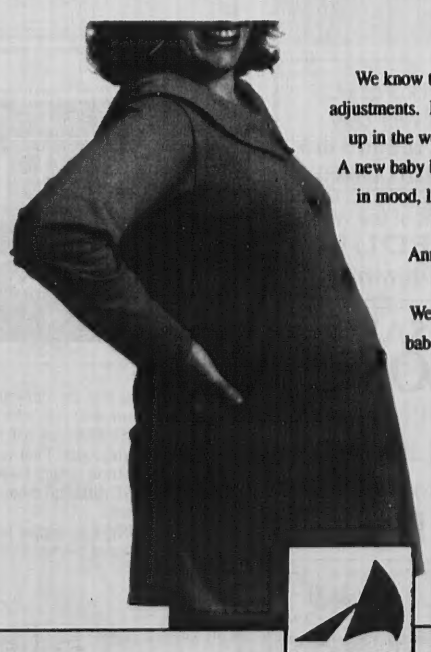

WOMEN'S CONCERNS

There are circumstances in women's lives which should lead them to exercise greater care for their teeth and gums. The use of oral contraceptives, pregnancy, and menopause are all associated with hormonal fluctuations that increase the gums' susceptibility to inflammation (gingivitis). Oral contraceptives may be responsible for conditions ranging from recurrent gingivitis to dry mouth and abnormal gum pigmentation. As for pregnancy, it brings on hormonal changes that cause gum inflammation in 60 percent or more of pregnant women. Finally, menopause is associated with reddened, painful gums, as well as dry mouth. Menopausal women may even experience a change in their sense of taste. The dentist can advise women about caring for any of these problems.

We try to make all our patients' visits to our offices as relaxing as possible. We want you to feel comfortable with us no matter what your dental problems, from routine care to the need for major restorative care. If you're hesitant about visiting the dentist, for any reason, we invite you to experience gentle dental care at 296 Lowell Street, Rt 133, with easy access off Rt 93. THE REAL ESTATE CORNER with Jean Fitzgerald & Pamela Lebowitz

DOES YOUR KITCHEN NEED A FACE LIFT

There's no doubt about it - the kitchen is the most important room in the whole house for many prospective buyers. This is why many smart sellers take a close look at their kitchens to make sure they are an asset when it is time to sell.

Your kitchen need not be state-of-the-art to be attractive. The first step toward making your kitchen appealing is to give it a thorough cleaning. This includes the walls, cabinets (inside and out), floors, and appliances. Keep the counter tops as clear as possible of small appliances and gadgets. Consider any low cost improvements that might make a big difference, such as a coat of paint, fresh wallpaper, or new floor covering. Once your house is ready for showing, be sure to keep the kitchen sparkling. This means no dirty dishes in the sink or moldy cucumbers in the refrigerator. This extra effort will pay high dividends!

If there's a move in your future, the real estate specialists at Century 21 Carriage House are ready to serve you. Feel free to visit our office at 10 High Street, or phone us at 475-1243.

FINANCIAL STRATEGIES

by Ronald R. Hill, CLU, ChFC

JUMPING IN ALL AT ONCE

When a person inherits a lump-sum amount or receives a pension payout, conventional wisdom would have him or her gradually shift the funds in equal amounts into the stock market. Provided that the market is the investor's vehicle of choice, this strategy of dollar-cost averaging lowers the risk of getting into the market at its high and lowers the average cost per share. As well as this approach may work for those who invest regularly out of current income, however, it may not be the best approach for those looking to invest lump sums. According to a study published in the Journal of Financial Planning, investing an entire lump sum in the market at one time produces better returns twice as often as using the dollar-cost averaging strategy. In order to determine which approach might work better for you given your particular investment situation, please give us a call. The choices we make for you are determined by you, with full consideration of both the "textbook facts" and your personal preferences.

At BAYSTATE FINANCIAL SERVICES, we offer financial services in areas of investments, pension and retirement, life insurance and estate planning, group benefits, and fee-based financial planning. If you have any questions or would like to schedule an appointment, please call us at 475-9212. Our office here in Andover is located at 10 Essex Street. We also have an office at 100 N. Washington Street in Boston (617) 523-4500. I am a Chartered Financial Consultant, and written and verbal references are available upon request.

HINT: The all-at-once approach to lump-sum investing works well because it does not call for an uninvested portion of the endowment to be held in a low-return risk-free asset.

Understanding Chiropractic

by Mark F. DeLorenzo, D.C.

POINTS OF REFERENCE

Some people dismiss the notion of visiting the chiropractor for their particular problems in the belief that it will afford them little benefit. As the reasoning goes: Why visit a "back doctor" when the pain is elsewhere in my body? The fact is that the source of pain generated in one part of the body may be felt in a distant, and seemingly unrelated, area. This phenomenon is known as "referred pain." When it occurs, only those familiar with its nature are likely to trace its symptoms to their true origin. The chiropractor knows that the nervous system can transmit its effect over the entire body. By relieving an obstruction to the flow of nerve energy in the back, one can provide beneficial effects elsewhere in the body.

If you have chronic pain, headaches, leg and arm pain, shoulder, back or neck pain, or other health problems, we can help. Chiropractic uses natural methods to restore and maintain your health. Please call DELORENZO CHIROPRACTIC GROUP, 475-5042, for an appointment. Chiropractic care not only restores health, it also builds health. Our office is located at 15 Central Street.

P.S. The conditions which doctors of chiropractic treat can be as varied and as vast as the nervous system itself.

Lena A. Robinson, the daughter of Leora Robinson of Longwood Drive, was accepted to the New England Law Review. Ms. Robinson is a second-year student at New England School of Law in Boston.

Mark O'Donnell of Andover recently won the Massachusetts Television Award for best production of a news educational program by someone under age 18. The contest, sponsored by the Massachusetts Cable Television Commission, annually draws hundreds of entries in 32 categories.

Mark O'Donnell

When Mr. O'Donnell produced Flightline, a 19-minute video exploring several aspects of aviation, he was a senior at Andover High School. After four years in the TCI Video Club sponsored by TCI Cablevision of Andover, he had developed the skills to write, shoot and edit this award-winning piece, the company said.

The avid model-plane builder and air-show fan said, "I wanted to do a project that allowed me to bring my interests in aviation and TV production together. It wasn't always easy, but the result was well worth it."

In Flightline, Mr. O'Donnell accompanies a KC135 straddle tanker on an actual refueling mission, and with the help of fellow student Brandon Auchterlonie, shares a ride on the wind in a glider.

The judging criteria for this award evaluate all aspects of the production. Points are given for production quality of sound and visuals, production style matching content, maintenance of viewer interest, creativity and distinctiveness.

"He took what could have been a very dry topic and mixed solid writing production skills, music and a dash of humor to create an interesting and unique program," said Karen Hayden, TCI Video Club adviser.

Mr. O'Donnell is the son of Miles and Marcia O'Donnell. He will be a sophomore at the University of Vermont in Burlington in September.

The program will air again on cable Channel 12 on successive Tuesdays, Aug. 30 and Sept. 6, at 6:35 p.m.

Bike and car collide

By Don Staruk

An Andover man escaped serious injury Tuesday morning when the bicycle he was riding collided with a car at the intersection of Lowell Street and Shawsheen Road, near West Parish Church.

Gary Rollins, 21, of 52 Brundrett Ave., was on his bicycle and Susan Zeytoonian, 41, of 76 North St., was in her Lincoln Town Car as both pulled out from the lights at Beacon Street to cross Lowell Street, according to Patrolman Rick Edson. Mr. Rollins, attempting to bear left on Shawsheen Road, struck the rear right door of Ms. Zeytoonian's car as she turned onto Reservation Road, Officer Edson said.

Mr. Rollins fell from his bike and scraped his knuckles, but refused transport to the hospital. He was wearing a helmet. His bike was not damaged. The car door was scratched, according to Officer Edson.

No citations were issued.

Ballardvale historical walk is tonight

A walking tour of historic Ballardvale will be held tonight, Thursday, Aug. 25, at 6:30. Meet leader Barbara Thibault of the Andover Historical Society at the Ballardvale train stop on Andover Street.

Beginning at the railroad station, the site provides a complete view of the mid-19th century planned mill village: the river, railroad, factories, houses, churches and shops. In the 18th century, the Shawsheen River and its water power attracted the Ballard family to operate grist- and saw mills. Then came John and William Marland, who, in 1836, established the Ballard Vale Manufacturing Co.

The laying of the present train line in 1848, Ballardvale's second railroad connection to outside markets, emphasizes the success of this new manufactory.

By this time, two mills – the Ballard Vale Manufacturing Co. and Whipple File Co. – a factory-owned store, a schoolhouse, a railroad depot and houses were nestled in the vale. Streets such as Tewksbury, Marland, Center and Oak were laid out; previously undeveloped land was subdivided into house lots; and residences were built, such as 11, 12, and 13-15 Tewksbury St.

From this area, the walk will wind through the mill buildings and up to Highvale Lane, so wear good walking shoes to see where the early Ballardvale residents worked and lived.

The tour is co-sponsored by the Department of Community Services, and has a $2 fee.

The Andover Historical Society, accredited by the American Association of Museums, is Andover's Historical Museum and Research Center. Beginning in September, the museum and research center will be open Monday through Saturday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., and Wednesday evenings until 8:30.

The deadline for news & info for the next issue is Monday, Aug. 29, at 5 p.m.

RELIGION NEWS

Temple Emanuel of Andover ushers in High Holy Day season

A special evening of music, followed by a creative slechot service, will usher in the High Holy Day period, the holiest of seasons on the Jewish calendar, this Saturday, Aug. 27, at 8:15 p.m. at Temple Emanuel, 7 Haggetts Pond Road.

A concert of organ, flute and violin music, under the direction of Joyce Painter-Rice and Cantor Donn Rosensweig, will be held in the temple foyer. Refreshments will follow, and then an outdoor slechot service will be led by Rabbi Robert Goldstein.

Traditionally, on the Saturday evening a week before the start of Rosh Hashana, Jews gather in the synagogue to recite penitential prayers, beginning the process of introspection and self-examination required at the High Holy Day season. Temple Emanuel of Andover continues a tradition of offering light classical music as a prelude to a creative slechot service. The community is invited to attend.

BrookRidge continues series

BrookRidge continues its series entitled "Against the Grain" this Sunday, Aug. 28, at 10:30 a.m. The series highlights what Jesus would say to modern-day people and dilemmas.

This Sunday's topic is "What would Jesus say about your unanswered prayers?" Jesus said, "Ask and it shall be given to you, seek and you shall find, knock and the door shall be opened to you." Why then are we all plagued at some time in our lives by the agony and mystery of unanswered prayer? What would Jesus say about it? This week's drama, entitled "Great Expectations," portrays a husband and wife experiencing a "heart-wrenching" disappointment.

BrookRidge meets at West Elementary School on Beacon Street. All are welcome. Call 682-0302.

OBITUARIES

Angelo J. Leno

Father of comedian Jay Leno

Angelo J. Leno, 83, of Clark Road, father of comedian Jay Leno, host of The Tonight Show, died Wednesday, Aug. 17, at Massachusetts General Hospital, after a short battle with cancer.

Angelo J. Leno

His wife of 57 years, Catherine, died of cancer in June of 1993.

Mr. Leno suffered from a type of lymphoma cancer that was discovered during an operation to correct a blocked colon last March, according to his elder son, Patrick Leno, of Partridge Hill Road.

Mr. Leno was born in New York City of Italian-American heritage. His wife was born in Glasgow, Scotland. The couple met in Bronx, N.Y., and married in November 1935.

He worked at Prudential Insurance Co. as a district manager for 38 years and CLU (Charter Life Underwriters) until he retired in 1976. Mr. Leno moved his family to Andover in 1959 from New Rochelle, N.Y., after he became district manager of the Greater Lawrence district for Prudential. His office was at 93 Main St., in Olde Andover Village, for many of those years.

"He devoted 38 years of his life to the insurance business. He liked to talk about the early days," Patrick Leno said this week. "He started off in Spanish Harlem."

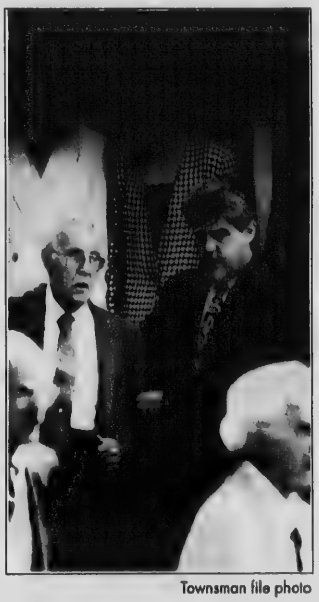

His son said that, to perform better at his job, Mr. Leno taught himself to speak Spanish by listening to a set of 78-rpm records.

"In fact, we still have the records," he said.

Mr. Leno was especially proud of two things.

He was an amateur boxer during the 1920s in the Bronx where he grew up. He earned the nickname the "Bronx Flash."

"He was real proud of that," Patrick Leno said. "He was also very proud of Jay, of course. He liked to let people know he was Jay's father."

Angelo Leno leans on the arm of his son, Jay, at the funeral of his wife, Catherine, in June 1993.

Patrick said his father would often use a credit card to make a purchase and then ask the clerk, "Do you recognize that name?"

"Dad was a very active man and he liked to spend his time working on projects around the house," his son said.

The first year after he retired, he sanded the entire exterior of the Clark Road house, which was Cape Cod red, down to the natural wood with a disc sander. He then stained it.

"When he was 78 years old, he and I were up on the roof putting on a new roof," Patrick said. "He had to keep moving."

"He liked Andover very much," Jay Leno said, by phone this week from Los Angeles.

That's why the family directed that, in

STATE SENATOR
John O'Brien . . .

ON LEADERSHIP AND INDEPENDENCE IN THE SENATE

"When I was elected to the State Senate, I knew that I would have to take difficult votes which would test my independence and leadership.

I set the tone for my first term when I cast my very first vote in the Senate against William Bulger for Senate President. I felt then, as I do now, that a change in leadership in the Senate was overdue and necessary. I was one of only two democrats in the entire Senate to vote for change at that time.

I was elected to the Senate to represent your best interests and fight for the kind of change you want. With your support this fall, I will continue to be an independent voice in the Senate."

Angelo J. Leno

lieu of flowers, donations could be made to the Andover High School Scholarship Endowment Fund, Mr. Leno said.

"It's nice to come from a small town," he said. "They certainly liked Andover and they liked doing things there. He and my mom, they had friends, but they sort of did things together all the time."

Jay sent his parents down to Florida for four months during winter 1993 to get them out of the snow and to be with relatives, many of whom now live in Florida, but said his mother probably would have preferred staying in Andover.

He delivered a eulogy for his father Monday night as he returned to the set of The Tonight Show.

In the nationally televised tribute to his father, Jay Leno emphasized that he was "brought up right." He said he saw his father angry only twice in the last 44 years, both times as a result of Jay's humorous pranks – as a child, ruining a large roast beef before a party (by lodging his plastic comb onto the string wrapped around the meat, while it was on a rotisserie); and recently, by masquerading as a doctor-with-an-attitude, implying that his ailing father, in the hospital, was a slacker. Both episodes brought laughs afterward.

He described his father as a self-made man whose outgoing ways made him many friends in business and in life, including new customers in Harlem and Spanish Harlem, in New York.

His father was always there for him, and they spoke on an almost-daily basis. Now that both of his parents have died within 14 months, Jay said (during an exchange on the show later Monday night with baseball player Bo Jackson), he feels like "an orphan." No one will answer the phone if he calls his parents' house now, he said, and in about a month, someone else will have the phone number and would answer a call to the number.

Pep talks his dad gave him continue to give him the reassurance to do his best, he said, closing his tribute Monday night.

Mr. Leno was a member of St. Augustine Church.

In addition to his two sons, members of his family include a grandson, Richard Leno of Andover; brothers, John Leno of San Diego, Calif., Louis Leno and Anthony Leno, both of New Rochelle, N.Y., and Michael Leno of Yorktown Heights, N.Y.; sisters, Edith Carfagno of South Salem, N.Y., and Faye Scott of Neptune City, N.J.; and many nieces and nephews.

A Mass was celebrated Saturday at St. Augustine Church. Burial was in West Parish Cemetery.

In lieu of flowers, donations may be made to the Andover High School Scholarship Endowment Fund, 100 Shawsheen Road, Attention Joanne Samra, in memory of Angelo Leno.

Arrangements were by Burke Funeral Home in Andover.

Consider These Thoughts

by Garry A. Burke

THE FULL EXPECTANCY OF LIFE

Some suggest that we should incorporate the idea into our lives that death is nothing more than another aspect of life. By doing so, death would not stand by itself as a lonesome entity, but would be seen as the final act in a long series. As Muriel Spark once mused, "If I had my life over again, I should form the habit of nightly composing myself to thoughts of death. I would practice, as it were, the remembrance of death. There is no other practice which so intensifies life. Death, when it approaches, ought not to take one by surprise. It should be part of the full expectancy of life. Without an ever-present sense of death, life is insipid. You might as well live on the whites of eggs."

Death is a confusing and painful time for us all, no matter what our personal beliefs. At BURKE FUNERAL HOME, we can help you through this trying time by listening to and discussing your feelings and beliefs about death. Please call us at 475-5200 to find out more about selecting funeral arrangements that will pay tribute to your loved one in a way that is most conducive to your personal beliefs. Let us share with you our sensitivity, friendship, and trust. You'll find us located at 390 North Main Street.

QUOTE: "In my end is my beginning."

Pool Party Features Pie Fight

By Perry Colmore

Check the town's street directory under Seminole Circle. Barbara Dennis lists her occupation as executive house engineer, "ex hse eng" in the book. Clearly, this is a woman with a sense of humor.

Ms. Dennis, who is 46 years old ("I feel 26 inside"), was diagnosed in 1987 with lupus, a disease in which the immune system is overactive – the opposite of AIDS, she says.

"Lupus tricks the body into thinking your main organs shouldn't be there, and attacks them," says Ms. Dennis.

Saturday, Ms. Dennis and her family – husband, Tom, director of engineering at UNEX Corp. in Chelmsford, Melissa, 20, and Jeff, 17, a senior at Andover High – hosted the Dennis' Fifth Annual Pie Fight and Pool Party. Family and friends threw paper plates full of whipped cream at one another.

"Having a sense of humor and being a little crazy help," says Ms. Dennis.

She says her prognosis is not good since the disease has attacked her heart and lungs. Doctors believe any transplanted organ would be attacked, too.

But she is determined to play, laugh and enjoy life.

"The more you laugh, the better you feel," she says. "On the good days, I run like hell, and on the bad days, I rest."

She and her neighbors had a good day Saturday, with one problem. On her second hit, Ms. Dennis fell and broke her coccyx. She dealt with that Sunday. Monday she spent nine hours at Brigham & Women's Hospital in Boston, being treated for lupus-related congestive heart failure.

Tuesday, she was exhausted, but still laughing.

"I'm managing pretty well," she says.

Who's running for what in the September primaries?

the state, United We Stand, is not having a primary, according to Randy Hanson, town clerk.

"So they're basically not functioning as a party in the state," Ms. Hanson said.

The Independent party is now defunct, not having had enough members cast ballots in the 1992 general election to remain a party, according to Ms. Hanson. But Independents, like Libertarians and a handful of other groups, are recognized designations and can still have members on the ballot for the general election in November. Louise Hart, of 11 Heather Drive, is planning to run for Congress as a Libertarian, and Mary Charbonneau, formerly of Lawrence, will run for the U.S. Senate as an Independent.

Anyone not enrolled in a party or a designation is still referred to as an "unenrolled" voter.

As of June 30, Andover had 17,726 registered voters, including 3,741 Republicans, 5,241 Democrats, 8,735 unenrolled voters and 4 Libertarians.

State representative, 17th Essex

Rep. Coon, of C-1 Colonial Drive, finishing his second two-year term in the House for the 17th Essex District, is unopposed for his own party's nomination, and there are no Democratic candidates for representative in the 17th Essex. His district includes seven of Andover's eight precincts, 1-4 and 6-8, and parts of Lawrence.

State rep., 18th Middlesex

Voters in Andover's Precinct 5 in West Andover are now in the 18th Middlesex District along with Lowell and part of Tewksbury. In the 18th, Rep. Edward A. LeLacheur, D-Lowell, the incumbent, is being challenged for his own party's nomination by Leo "Buckles" Nolan, also of Lowell.

Roy F. Nagle, of Lowell, is unopposed for the Republican nomination in the 18th Middlesex.

Mr. LeLacheur, 69, a former butcher and grocery store owner, has served 20 years in the House, having been re-elected nine times. He and his wife, Eileen, both life-long residents of Lowell, have six children.

Mr. Nolan, 59, who is retired and disabled, has run for Lowell City Council four times and lost each time.

Mr. Nagle, 27, is a graduate of UMass-Lowell with a bachelor's degree in political science. He currently is attending Massachusetts School of Law in Andover.

State Senate, 2nd Essex and Middlesex

Sen. O'Brien, of 107 High St., is facing Edward J. Bishop Jr., of Dracut, former commissioner of the Tewksbury State Hospital board of trustees, and Frank J. Gorman, of Dracut, for the Democratic nomination for state Senate in the 2nd Essex and Middlesex District. The district includes Andover, Dracut, Tewksbury and Lawrence.

Andover resident Maria Marasco, of 191 Holt Road, is unopposed for the Republican nomination for state Senate in the 2nd.

Sen. O'Brien is finishing his first two-year term. He ran on a campaign of providing new leadership two years ago and says now his record of accomplishment shows he has lived up to that pledge.

He is a former chief counsel to the Senate Ways and Means Committee. He supports a two-year limit on welfare benefits, abolishing county government and safety in schools. He has helped the town and the state obtain public money for the extension of Burtt Road in Lowell Junction. He also helped formulate plans that will keep River Road open during reconstruction of the River Road bridge over Interstate 93, a project that will likely get under way next year.

He and his wife, Kathleen, have a son, Matthew, and are expecting their second child in January.

Mr. Gorman has 20 years experience in the insurance business. He ran for the state Senate, first Middlesex District, in 1992 and lost. He was a Dracut selectman six years and a member of the Northern Middlesex Council of Governments, a regional planning agency, for six years.

He describes himself as a "hands-on, project-oriented guy," and is running on a platform of insurance reform, creation of jobs, halting home foreclosures and continued revitalization of blighted areas. He supports creation of enterprise zones, widening Route 3 to reduce traffic on I-93, returning 40 percent of taxes as local aid and increased state funding for extension of municipal sewer lines.

He and his wife, Darlene, have three sons and a daughter.

Mr. Bishop is an independent businessman. There is no phone listed under his name.

U.S. Congress, 5th District

First-term Congressman Martin T. Meehan, D-Lowell, is being challenged for his party's nomination for U.S. representative in Congress by Thomas J. Quinn, also of Lowell.

The winner of that primary will face David Coleman, of Methuen, who is running unopposed for the Republican nomination. Mr. Coleman was unsuccessful in his bid for state Senate two years ago in his first run for elected office.

Rep. Meehan, who is single, is a former Middlesex district attorney.

U.S. Senate

Sen. Kennedy is unopposed in the Democratic primary, but John R. Lakian, of Falmouth, is vying with W. Mitt Romney, of Belmont, for the Republican spot. The winner of the Romney/Lakian race will take on Sen. Kennedy in November.

Sen. Kennedy has served five six-year terms in the Senate, having first been elected in 1963.

Mr. Lakian last ran for governor in 1986, but had trouble with credibility after questions arose regarding his service in Vietnam and his resume.

Mr. Romney operates Bain Capital, an investment firm, and describes himself as a self-made millionaire. He is making his first run for elected office.

Governor

Gov. William Weld, of Cambridge, is unopposed in the primary for the Republican nomination, but three Democrats are after their party's nomination.

George A. Bachrach, of Watertown, is a former assistant district attorney. Michael J. Barrett, of Cambridge, is a former state senator. Rep. Mark Roosevelt, D-Boston, has served four terms in the House.

Gov. Weld is nearing the end of his first four-year term as governor.

Rep. Roosevelt, 37, is running on a platform of "issues concerning children, education, the environment and the economy," according to an early statement from his campaign. He has served as executive director of the John F. Kennedy Library Foundation and on President Jimmy Carter's domestic policy staff at the White House. In 1990, he was director of Frank Bellotti's campaign for governor.

He lives with his 7-year-old son, Matthew, in Boston.

Lt. Governor

Lt. Gov. Argeo Paul Cellucci, of Hudson, is unopposed in the Republican primary for lieutenant governor. He is a one-term incumbent who ran on the ticket with Gov. Weld four years ago and will do so again this time.

Marc D. Draisen, a state representative from Boston, is up against Robert K. Massie, of Somerville, for the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor.

Attorney general

Attorney General L. Scott Harshbarger, of Westwood, a former Middlesex County district attorney, is unopposed in the Democratic primary for his re-election. Mr. Harshbarger is completing his first four-year term.

Janis M. Berry, of Saugus, a former U.S. attorney, is facing Guy A. Carbone, of Belmont, a former commissioner for the Metropolitan District Commission, for the Republican nomination for attorney general.

Secretary of state

Secretary of State Michael J. Connolly, D-Boston, who has served as secretary of state since 1979, is not seeking another four-year term in that position.

State Senator Arthur E. Chase, R-Worcester, is opposing Peter V. Forman, of Plymouth, for the Republican nomination for secretary of state.

For the Democrats, William Francis Galvin, of Boston, a former state representative, is fighting Augusto F. Grace, of Burlington, a former state representative and Burlington School Committee member, for the nomination.

State treasurer

State Treasurer Joseph D. Malone, of Waltham, is unopposed in the Republican primary for re-election to his second four-year term.

State Senator Shannon P. O'Brien, D-Easthampton, a former state representative, is also unopposed for her party's nomination for treasurer.

State auditor

A. Joseph DeNucci, the incumbent, is unopposed for the Democratic nomination for state auditor. Mr. DeNucci, of Newton, is finishing his second four-year-year term in that position, but has held the seat since 1987.

Former state representative and selectman Forrester "Tim" Clark Jr. of Hamilton is running against Eale B. Stroll, of Lexington, for the Republican nomination.

Governor's Council

Edward J. Carroll, of Lynn, the incumbent 5th District councilor and an Essex County deputy sheriff, is being challenged by two members of his own party for the Democratic nomination for a two-year term on the Governor's Council. Mr. Carroll ousted Andover's John Harris, a Republican, from that position when he was elected in 1992.

He is being challenged by Democrats Paul Delios, of Saugus, and Patricia A. Dowling, of North Andover, a former Essex County assistant district attorney.

John Walsh, of Wilmington, is running unopposed for the Republican nomination to the Governor's Council.

Essex County seats

Kevin M. Burke, of Beverly, incumbent Essex County district attorney, Eastern District; James D. Leary, incumbent clerk of courts from Peabody; and Thomas J. Burke, Essex County registrar of deeds, Northern District; are all unopposed for both their Democratic nominations in the primary and in the November general election.

County Commissioner

Kevin J. Leach, R-Manchester-by-the-Sea, the incumbent, is not running for re-election. Instead, he is seeking the House seat in the 4th Essex District.

Christopher T. Casey, of Lynn, Christie "Chris" Ciampa Jr., of Saugus, Ronald F. Ford, of Methuen, and Anibal "Tex" Teixeira, of Peabody, are all vying for the Democratic nomination for Essex County Commissioner, a six-year term.

Mr. Ciampa is a selectman in Saugus and is making at least his second run for the seat.

Charles J. Chisolm, of Danvers, Barton K. Hyte, of Marblehead, and Frederick H. "Ted" Tarr, of Rockport, are all after the Republican nomination for commissioner.

Mr. Chisolm, a former Danvers alderman and school committee member, is also making at least his second bid for the seat.

Mr. Hyte is chairman of the Massachusetts Outdoor Advertising Board.

Mr. Tarr is a Rockport selectman and former planning board member.

Neighbors want a say in expansion of Rec Park

of more stop signs might not help.

"I'm not really so sure that increased traffic is going to increase accidents. It doesn't always happen that way," said Lt. Froburg. "It really has to be looked at in depth to see if there is a problem with signage there."

He pointed out that one of the drivers involved in the accident, 17-year-old Albert Kwon, was cited for running a stop sign.

"Stop signs are not meant to control the speed of vehicles," he said. "Had that person stopped, we might not have had an accident.

Since Jan. 1, 1993, there have been six accidents "in or about that intersection," and 12 accidents on the three roads leading into the crossroads, according to Sgt. Brian Pattullo.

Although the recent accident made traffic considerations the most vivid of their concerns, Rec Park neighbors are discussing a number of other issues.

Among these are the location of new structures and fields, and the amount of supervision, maintenance and funding that the project will provide for the expanded facilities.

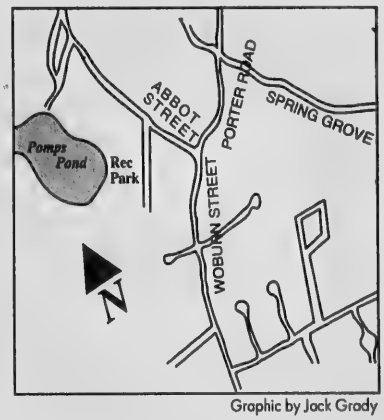

Next month residents will have their chance to voice these concerns to the town, according to Jim Bamford, town forester.

The town is still working on project plans in conjunction with Somerville's Weinmayer Associates, a landscape architecture firm. But after school opens Sept. 8 and the majority of residents return to town, officials will schedule one or more public meeting, said Mr. Bamford. He said he is unsure whether the town will schedule one meeting, a separate meeting for abutters or a number of meetings arranged by topic.

"We're sort of mulling that over. We have a good sized list of abutters," said Mr. Bamford. "I don't think abutters would want to sit through a meeting about the number of fields or the size of the fields."

Actually, some residents, such as Margaret Pustell of 85 Porter Road, might.

Ms. Pustell, who enjoys walking through the heavily wooded paths, said she is concerned that too much of the wooded area might be destroyed to create the proposed ball fields.

Graphic by Jack Grady

This map shows the site where a recent car accident occurred, at the intersection of Woburn and Abbot streets and Porter Road, and its proximity to Rec Park.

"I'm not against upgrading Rec Park and using it for additional things. It really is a gem of an area and more people should find out about it," she said, suggesting a boardwalk path be created to link Fosters Island to the rest of the park.

The town currently is considering adding playing fields, a teen or community center, and skating rink to the facilities, and thinning out the woods near the Pomps Pond beach area as part of the project.

"I think it should be looked at for those things. I think we need a teen center and a senior center. I would just like to see some careful planning," said Ms. Pustell. "I think it's easier to place a building than six ball fields."

Both Ms. Pustell and Mr. Sumberg suggest using the already flat and removed gravel pit, an area they describe as town land, as a site for a playing field and the necessary parking.

Ms. Pustell, a member of the loosely structured Friends of Pomps Pond group, mentioned that there are two earlier expansion plans for the park. Mr. Bamford said these plans were considered in creating the current project. He also said one of the reasons the gravel pit idea was dismissed is because its use might contaminate the Ballardvale water well. Although the well is not currently in use, it is being held in reserve in case of a drought.

"It's been looked at before. The gravel pit was considered for ball fields before Rec Park was," he said.

Other park neighbors are more interested in the supervision and maintenance funding that will be provided if town facilities such as a teen center or maintenance building are built in the park.

"The town has not shown in the past that it can keep (the park up). The tennis courts get vandalized constantly, the roads are terrible and it's a hangout," said Ms. Watts. "They haven't included us in any of this and we are all abutters. My house backs up to it right now and I can tell you it's a hangout for kids. I've been vandalized and my neighbor's been vandalized."

"If there's going to be a youth center, how are they going to supervise it?" asked Mr. Sumberg.

Bill Fahey, the town's youth services coordinator, said that constructing a fence along the outskirts of the park might be worthwhile.

"If we do build a place out there, we do need to have more staff," he said.

One of the reasons the Youth Council considered working with the SHED and Kids Club programs was to create more personnel or funding for the effort, according to Mr. Fahey.

A graduate of Merrimack College, Mr. Fahey said he may also try to create a program with Merrimack, involving college-age chaperones for Youth Council projects. The town may also use volunteers.

"We've had a number of people volunteer or say, 'Here's my name. Here's my number. If you ever need someone to volunteer, call me,' " he said. "The three events we've already had, we've had college-aged chaperones there.

"If some kind of building comes about, we definitely have to look at the two issues of staffing and supervision."

Buzz Stapczynski, town manager, was unavailable for comment regarding future funding for supervision or increased park maintenance.

Marty Meehan works to reduce burden on manufacturers

U.S. Rep. Martin T. Meehan, D-Lowell, recently introduced bipartisan legislation designed to reduce regulatory burdens on American manufacturers.

"Last year the federal government published 69,688 pages of new regulations, some of them overlapping state and local statues and other imposed without much thought about whether there might be a more cost-effective way to get the job done, Rep. Meehan said.

"Many regulations are so difficult to understand that the government has started offering a class on how to read the Federal Register. It is time to streamline and simplify the regulatory process and that's what this bill will do."

Rep. Meehan is the co-chairman of the Manufacturing Task Force, a congressional working group dedicated to revitalizing the nation's manufacturing sector. Regulatory reform was among the key recommendations made by the task force in a recent report.

The bill, "The Administrative Procedure Reform Act of 1994," will improve the regulatory process by requiring a comprehensive impact analysis for major new rules. The legislation requires that executive branch agencies follow uniform guidelines and make reliable estimates of costs and benefits prior to implementing a major rule.

"Our goal is not to eliminate regulation, but to improve them," Rep. Meehan said. "Our task force heard time and time again that the regulatory process is unnecessarily cumbersome and confusing, especially for small companies. We want regulators to write rules that can be interpreted without an army of lawyers."

The Northeast-Midwest Congressional Coalition Manufacturing Task Force includes 41 members of the House and is co-chaired by Rep.Meehan and Rep. Bob Franks, R-N.J.

Don't let this stop us

Neighbors of Recreation Park have raised some legitimate concerns about plans to expand and upgrade the park. But residents, neighbors, town officials and teenagers shouldn't let these concerns discourage them. Rather, officials should gather them together quickly, discuss their concerns and address them, one by one.

Andover is trying to build a gathering place at Rec Park for the town's youth, as well as other residents. For years, plans for a teen center have gathered momentum, only to die in the end.

For several months now, residents have put their energy and dreams into action for a center. Youth Services director Bill Fahey has directed the teens' energy into the correct channels. The selectmen have backed the effort too, and so has Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski.

Now some neighbors are worried about an intersection near the park: Woburn and Abbot streets and Porter Road, the site of a recent auto accident. In addition, at least one neighbor says the town already does not take care of Rec Park properly, even without a youth center, and before adding more ball fields or tennis courts.

Neighbors point out that if Rec Park becomes a gathering place for town youth, we will need more supervision and maintenance there. And that means money.

Let us not become discouraged by that news. Listen to Bill Fahey: "We've had a number of people volunteer or say, 'Here's my name. Here's my number. If you ever need someone to volunteer, call me.' "

The town can do this. It can build a youth center at Rec Park. But we need to listen to the neighbors. We need to answer their needs, too. And we will all have to compromise. But we are convinced it can be done.

Sean Patrick Michael Wilson, 4 years old, moved to Andover from Denver, Colo., two-and-a-half weeks ago. His mother, Patricia Wilson, said Andover is wonderful, but the family is sad that their brown and black tiger stripe cat, Jake, was lost in the Indian Ridge area during the move. They have offered a $250 reward for the return of Jake.

Remembering summers at the beach

Perry Colmore

When I was a child living in Charlotte, N.C., in the summers my parents would pack up the station wagon with three months' worth of clothes and other items – one stuffed animal per kid, baseball mitts, bicycles, beach toys – for three kids and usually a dog, and drive to Bay Shore, Long Island, N.Y., where we would board a ferry for the hour-long trip to the tiny summer community of Point O' Woods, on Fire Island.

I remember that final drive down Maple Avenue in Bay Shore toward the boatyard, when you could smell the salt water. We'd start unlacing our sneakers, and the pain of the long, hot drive would fade, replaced by visions of swimming in the surf, eating ice cream cones at night and playing with friends we met once a year for three months at the beach.

My father would spend that week and the next at the beach, fishing, catching up on his sleep, playing tennis and playing with us. Then he'd do the long drive by himself back to work in Charlotte. At the end of August, he'd return, spend another week at Point O' Woods with us, and then drive us back to the world of telephones, televisions, shoes, school, and a house whose floors were covered with rugs instead of sand.

I never thought much about what summer must have been like for Dad. And I don't remember him complaining about working when we were playing, or living without his family for those months. Maybe it was peaceful for him. If he were alive today, I'd probably ask him about it.

I can imagine his answer: "Why would I have minded? I spent three weeks at Point O' Woods with you. I had to go to work." Dad was not one to dwell on his feelings.

What I remember the most about the three weeks he was at Point O' Woods was tennis with Dad. In later life, he was a tennis addict. When I was a teen-ager, if I brought home a boyfriend, Dad wanted to take him out for a game of tennis. All of us played in tennis tournaments as long as I can remember. Since there were five in my family, we played three against two. Family tennis was fun. Playing alone with Dad was not. I wanted to rally; he wanted to teach.

The Colmore family at Point O' Woods, about 1946, from left, Bish, Perry sitting on Peggy's lap, Sylvia and Blayney, on the steps of their house.

"Come on Dad, can't we just hit?" I'd whine.

"Just let's work a little more on your backhand," he'd say, standing at the net with a bucket of balls, hitting them right to me.

I also remember some tension between my parents when Dad was

Point of all of this: Loss of a friend

Editor, Townsman:

During the course of the past few weeks we have read articles and letters concerning Andover High School, its students and its faculty. Dan Buchholz stated that suicide, freedom of speech and the principal of the High School are important issues at Andover High School. Chris Sintros rebutted with a positive review of the High School.

It seems this could go on and on until we are all on Oprah. In reality, there is only one issue at the root of all this: The loss of a friend.

It was rough on the students and faculty when three AHS students committed suicide within a year's time. When Sean Gauthier died it seemed as if we, the students of AHS, never said goodbye. People started blaming the school and others instead of dealing with the loss of the person who was a friend to many of us.

Mr. Thomas suggested a service in memory of Sean for friends and family and offered his help. However, no one was able to put in the effort at such a painful time. Perhaps it became easier to express our sadness and anger in conflict that steers us away from the real problem – our pain.

We must value what we have and where we are striving to go. We need to stop criticizing, defending and contradicting each other. No one person is all right and no one person is all wrong. Mr. Buchholz has demonstrated free speech, Mr. Thomas has demonstrated that he cares and Mr. Sintros has demonstrated that Andover High School is a valuable place. It is time to move beyond conflict and say goodbye.

Artists should support artists

Editor, Townsman:

I find it ironic that an organization such as the Artists Guild would choose to hire a deejay to provide music for the Art in The Park event. Artists should support artists and the Artists Guild has neglected an opportunity to showcase and support area musicians who, along with the presentation of visual art, would make Art in The Park a festival truly worthy of its name.

DOWN THE YEARS

100 Years Ago, Aug. 24, 1894

The Fall term of the public schools opens on Sept. 10.

The Townsman ran ads for stores selling hats at $1.19 at Skillings on Essex Street in Lawrence, $2 suits for $1 at Bicknell Brothers, also in Lawrence, and boneless sardines for 35 cents at P.&C. Sardines.

An alarm of fire was rung in about 10:15 last Saturday night, calling the department to the coal sheds, belonging to Frank E. Gleason, on Railroad Street, where there was a slight blaze on the roof. Sparks from an engine were the probable cause. The damage was very slight.

Wednesday evening the campers and those who occupy cottages near Haggetts Pond, had a dance at Bailey's Grove. Music was furnished by "Thom's orchestra." A number of Andover young people were present.

50 Years Ago, Aug. 24, 1944

The Northern New England School of Religious Education will be in session all of next week at Phillips Academy, for the second time in Andover, and the twenty-ninth, since its establishment. Faculty and students will number over 300, or about 50 more than last year.

An open competitive examination for postmaster at the Andover Post Office has been announced by the Civil Service commission at Washington, with applications to close on September 12, 1944. The position, held up until July 1 by John McDonald, who at that time reached the retirement age, carries a base salary of $3,400.

25 Years Ago, Aug. 21, 1969

Six hundred and eighty-nine including 53 from the Retarded Children's Association, was the number registered for the United Fund Day camp, a program conducted for the first time by the United Fund at the request of the Greater Lawrence Regional Vocational Technical High School.

The United Fund provided the allocation and campers were provided by the International Institute, the Boy's Club, the Anti-Poverty Council, the Y.M.C.A., and Y.W.C.A. and the public agencies in the city and three towns.

Boneless sardines were selling for 35 cents 100 years ago.

The staff at the Andover Y.M.C.A. without cost provided direction for the program.

Registration of new students will be taking place in Andover Schools during the final week of August and early September in preparation for the reopening of schools on Thursday, Sept.4.

Aug. 28, 1969

Improvement of traffic flow through Andover's downtown business district and provision of additional municipal off-street parking were discussed at Monday night's board of selectmen's meeting. A committee from the Andover Chamber of Commerce met with the selectmen and reported on studies they have made. The group included Atty. Thomas W. Tavenner, president of the chamber; Glen Harvey, chamber executive; John Callahan of Callahan Associates; and A.D. Maclanen.

10 Years Ago, Aug. 16, 1984

McLays Florist and Garden Center advertised six roses for $4.95.

Charles and Barbara Richmond were trying to decide whether to construct a shopping center or two dozen apartments on land they own on Essex St.

Aug. 23, 1984

Bids have been opened for the Memorial Hall Library renovaton project, and with the lowest bid at just under $3.7 million, the town manager is optimistic that the project can be completed for a total $5.2 million, about $1.1 million less than architects' estimates.

Landscaping around the town office on Bartlet Street and the adjoining park should be finished by Oct. 1, the town manager said this week, with fingers crossed for good luck.

Townsman intern Linda Kenney compiled Down The Years from copies of the Andover Townsman, which are on file at Memorial Hall Library.

How did he feel going back to work, when we played?

at Point O'Woods. It was my mother's community, not his. Her father, a New York City doctor, was an early member of this summer-only community, which originally was a chautauqua – begun in the 1880s or 1890s – a religious and self-improvement retreat. Point O' Woods is tiny – a quarter-mile wide from bay to ocean and three-quarters of a mile long, one of 16 or 17 communities on Fire Island, which is about 30 miles long. There are no cars at Point O' Woods. People walk or ride bicycles. There are about 110 cottages.

The one church is a focal point. On Sundays, the tennis courts don't open until after church. In my parents' days, and today, too, most everyone went to church, except for Mr. Whitney, who said he was an atheist. While we were singing in church in our starched smocked dresses, our hair still wet from the morning swim, Mr. Whitney would take his revolver to the dump and shoot rats. He said it was his contribution to the community.

As a child I felt special because the rector's study that was connected to the church was built in memory of my maternal grandmother.

Of course my father learned about Point O' Woods through my mother. Family stories allege that my father was sometimes introduced at the beach as Bish VanderVeer, instead of Bish Colmore.

Even though his name was Charles Blayney Colmore, he was called Bish because his father was an Episcopal bishop. Going to church was in his blood. Church at Point O' Woods improved with Dad's presence. He sang loud, sometimes embarrassing me, but usually holding my hand. And he let us go barefoot to church, too. I don't think my mother allowed that, even though other kids did it.

It wasn't church that created tension between my parents at Point O' Woods. It was the cocktail hour, an important social time in that community, a time I dodge to this day when I am there. For my father, and for me today, being at the beach was about swimming and playing tennis, fishing, reading, drifting into short afternoon naps, taking walks and remembering to observe butterflies and the curl of a wave.

But Mom would accept invitations to social affairs, and Dad would still be on the beach at 6 p.m., because the stripers were running, or he was engaged in conversation with a man who was fishing successfully with a different kind of bait, and Dad hadn't noticed how late it was.

Often my parents would show up at the same time at our shingled house at 8 for dinner, he in a bathing suit, sunburned, salty and happy, smelling a little like fish, she in a sundress, smelling like perfume, looking pretty but annoyed, having made his excuses to her host and hostess.

Today I wonder if he didn't believe his three weeks of vacation compared to her 12 meant he could do what he pleased while he was at the beach. I don't know. And I am not sure I would ask him today were he alive.

Andover High varsity football team kicks off fall practice

By Rick Harrison

The 1994 Andover High football team opened pre-season practice yesterday with the first of several non-contact workout sessions at AHS.

All other fall athletic teams will start their practices next Monday, the majority at 8 a.m., and in Andover's case that means boys and girls soccer, boys and girls cross country, field hockey, girls volleyball and girls swimming.

Head coaches for these sports are Dave Amundsen (boys soccer), Dick Loschi (girls soccer), Leo Lafond (cross country), Sandy Lunt (field hockey), Art Iworsley and George Sullivan (volleyball) and Marilyn Fitzgerald (swimming).

Football schedule

The Golden Warrior football team caught a break this year when it received an opening week bye, giving Coach Dick Collins' crew an extra week to prepare.

All other Merrimack Valley Conference members, with the exception of Wilmington, will play their first game the weekend of Sept. 9-10.

Andover is off until Friday night, Sept. 16, when it hosts first-time opponent Leominster in the season and home opener at Lovely Field.

Kickoff time is 7 p.m.

The MVC opener follows on Friday, Sept. 23 against Lowell, and that game is also at Lovely Field (7 p.m.).

There is more good fortune for AHS because the first three games, four of the first five games, and six of the 10 are at home.

Nine of the 10 contests are on Friday night with the other on Thanksgiving morning.

Other opponents are Tewksbury (Sept. 30, home), Methuen (Oct. 7, away), Haverhill (Oct. 14, home), Dracut (Oct. 21, away), Wilmington (Oct. 28, home), Chelmsford (Nov. 4, away) and Billerica (Nov. 11, away).

The traditional Thanksgiving Day game against Central Catholic will be played on Thursday, Nov. 24 at Lovely Field (10 a.m.).

There are no easy teams on the schedule, but the toughest games appear to be at either end of the season.

September foes Leominster and Lowell should give the Golden Warriors an early indication where they stand. The Leominster Blue Devils have long been a Central Mass. Division I power, competing favorably with and beating several Brockton teams in recent years.

They were added as the lone non-league opponent when Lawrence withdrew from the league for two years. The Lancers will play only Dracut, Wilmington and longtime Thanksgiving rival Lowell from the league.

Andover played all league games last fall, and for six years prior to that (1987-'92) had a non-league series with North Andover High.

A veteran Lowell team returns almost everyone from a 6-3-1 squad, and the Red Raiders are expected to challenge for the title.

November opponents Chelmsford and Central, defending MVC tri-champs, will give Andover all it can handle at the end of the year. The twin terrors are the pre-season picks to win it all again this fall.

The Warriors will be out to break a three-game losing streak and bounce back from a rare off-year when the season opens. AHS finished 2-7-1 last fall, beating Lawrence and Wilmington, tying Dracut, and dropping seven games including the final three against Chelmsford, Billerica and Central.

Prior to 1993 Andover had compiled a 31-9 record the previous four years and a 55-23-1 mark from 1985-'92.

Key graduates from last year's team include tri-scoring leaders

auto tips

by Henry Nassar
Owner

KIND OF A DRAG

The main reason that many of today's automobiles assume wedge shapes and rounded contours is so that they may be better suited to aerodynamic demands. In order to achieve high fuel efficiency, cars must be able to slice through the air. The numerical measurement of an automobiles ability to do so is known as its coefficient of drag, or Cd. The lower the number of a car's Cd, the less it is affected by wind drag and the higher gas mileage it produces. Generally, today's cars fall within a Cd range of 0.30 and 0.40. Most new car buyers do not look for this number as readily as they do the sticker price, but it does afford them a bit of useful information for comparisons, etc.

The aerodynamic shape of your car may be an important factor for high fuel efficiency, but there are other things that are important too. Regular tune-ups and frequent oil changes are just some of the ways you can maximize the performance of your vehicle. Here at NASSAR FORD, our service department will be happy to set up a customized maintenance schedule for you. We also have a wide variety of new and used cars and trucks in stock. Long term warranties are available, and we also offer financing to qualified buyers. Please come visit us at 320 S. Broadway in Lawrence, or call (508) 688-6804. Our service department is open Monday through Friday from 7:00 AM to 5:30 PM.

HINT: Coefficient of drag is measured by subjecting a car to a wind

Toby Guzowski and Dave Jorgenson (18 points each), quarterback Jeff Brammer, two-way lineman Phil Smith and Paul Allard.

Among the top 1993 players expected to suit up again are solid junior fullback-defensive end Dana McCann, senior quarterback candidates and defensive standouts Eric Thompson and Peter Daniels, sophomore quarterback-placekicker-safety Brian Tisbert, senior end Brian Marshall and linemen Steve Muench, Mike Dalton, Spencer Wendt, Chris Dunn, Cris Brown and George Secchiaroli. Other promising offensive backfield candidates last year were Dana DiFiore, Jeff Arsenault, Bob Minasian and Scott Robb. Tisbert should be one of the finest kickers in the area, having booted three field goals (including two in one game versus Wilmington) and eight conversions for 17 points. There will be excellent candidates from the junior varsity team and Coach Ken Pellerin's 7-1-1 freshman team. .

AHS seniors earn places on all-star basketball team

By Rick Harrison

Frontcourt standouts Eric Danis and Matt Gibson, Andover High soon-to-be seniors, were both named to the Hoops For Hope Summer Basketball League first All-Star team during the recently-completed second season of play.

The high-scoring pair, both of whom averaged double figures and were rebounding and defensive forces, helped lead the Andover entry in the league to another outstanding season which ended when the defending champs were upset 63-53 in the quarterfinals by Salem, N.H.

Andover spent most of the summer season undefeated and atop the Varsity Division standings, looking to repeat the 1993 performance.

"Danis and Gibson were clearly two of the premiere players in the league," said Hoops For Hope founder, Jim Arnold, an Andover native and former three-sport Golden Warrior standout.

Danis, Gibson and Tom Tanin will form the nucleus for what promises to be an outstanding 1994-95 AHS varsity basketball team for Coach Dave Fazio.

Every time you pay rent you lose the opportunity to build equity. And in the long run that can waste a lot of hard earned money.

Today's real estate market could be the ideal time to buy. Many sellers are willing to negotiate, and interest rates are down. Plus, our trained Sales Associates can give you details on down payment options and different financing plans.

Peddlers: Rules of going door-to-door in Andover

there is not a whole lot of control on most of them.

The rules vary

The groups and individuals that solicit in town, and all over the state, vary greatly, and there are different requirements for some of them.

Groups that go door-to-door soliciting for a cause, charity or a service that the customer will receive at a future date are not required to have a permit or license, police say. Anyone selling a product at the door, such as furniture, needs a state-issued hawker's and peddler's license. A third group includes transient vendors, who might rent space in a commercial parking lot, such as at Shawsheen Plaza, and sell items from a truck. There is a separate state-issued license required for transient vendors.

A town bylaw requires door-to-door solicitors to register with the police department and to supply the names of the individuals who will be soliciting and car registrations of vehicles. And that practice is adhered to, police say.

Groups or individuals sign in with the dispatchers at the front desk and the dispatchers maintain a list of what groups are active in town. Greenpeace and Thomasville furniture people were the only two organizations registered that may still be working in town this week.

But another requirement of the bylaw, that each individual receive a "solicitor registration card," is not practiced under the department's present policy, police said.

Lt. Phillip Froburg, operations commander, said it currently is not feasible to investigate every individual who wants to come to town to solicit, and then issue the person a registration card.

"So many come in from time to time that we don't physically issue them a registration card," Lt. Froburg said. "As far as checking each individual, we don't do that."

Some of the regular groups, such as Greenpeace, send a letter to the department before coming to town. They advise police of their intentions and give the names and addresses of each solicitor. Other groups, such as Jehovah's Witnesses, check in each morning and tell the police where they will be working in town.

Usually, if a resident has a question about a solicitor, he or she can call the police station to find out what groups, if any, are scheduled to be in the neighborhood that day.

Time-of-day restrictions

A second part of the town bylaw also restricts the time solicitors can work in town, to between the hours of 9 a.m. and 5 p.m., but the bylaw is superseded by a U.S. Supreme Court decision that ruled that time restrictions are unconstitutional, Lt. Froburg said.

"We can't restrict the time as far as I know," Lt. Froburg said. "I would certainly say that section B of that is not enforceable."

Some groups, such as Greenpeace, will often include a copy of the Supreme Court decision with its letter to the department, according to the lieutenant.

> 'So many come in from time to time that we don't physically issue them a registration card. As far as checking each individual, we don't do that.'

Magazine sales

A few years ago, a woman in Waltham was killed by a young, out-of-state employee selling magazines door-to-door. The state responded with legislation requiring companies that employ groups of students and others under age 18, and who are selling goods or periodicals door-to-door, to register the individuals with the first city or town they enter in Massachusetts. That community's police department is required to do a background check on the individuals and, if they are found to be of "good moral character" and without a criminal record, to issue them a picture identification card.

That is not the current practice in Andover. The law requires that the department issue the ID within two days, "and we're just not able to do that," the lieutenant said.

Running names through the computer would only bring up serious warrants. A complete check would require a record check for every state, the lieutenant said.

"How much can you do?" Lt. Froburg asked.

And to provide a clearance for someone without doing a more complete check would be a disservice to the community, some believe.

The lieutenant researched the state law and ID requirement a while ago, he said. The law does allow the town to charge up to $50 for that service, which would be a restriction in and of itself, the lieutenant said. Yet, if the town issued the IDs and charged too small a fee, Andover might become a haven for groups seeking those IDs, further burdening the department.

But some sort of policy and procedure should be developed at the department to comply with that law, Lt. Froburg said. "As for the magazine salesmen, we really have to get a policy in place to at least license them."

Enforcement

Enforcement is a problem with many individuals, according to the lieutenant, because many of them are from out of town or out of state. Very few of the complaints involve members of Greenpeace, or other groups, who frequently return to the area.

If a summons is issued for a violation of the state law, in all likelihood an out-of-state solicitor is not going to return for court, he said. As for the town bylaw, the ticketing procedure is in place, but there is also little chance an out-of-state salesperson will pay a fine.

"French Style" is a state of mind

Attention to detail can turn a conventional outfit into a fashion statement. A scarf that matches your eyes, a pair of pendants — one gold, one silver — always worn together. A black silk tank top under a navy blazer.

"French fashion is about what to wear, French style focuses on how to wear it," says Veronique Vienne, Paris-born author of French Style: How to Think, Shop and Dress Like a French Woman. A woman's individuality and style, Ms.Vienne added, are her best assets.

"First rule of fashion is break the rules," she advises.

Ms.Vienne's do's and don'ts for great style include:

- Do leave the house looking terrific; it's wise to shop with a healthy sense of self-esteem.
- Do compare value not price. Any purchase that delivers what it promises is a bargain.
- Do wear black when in doubt. Add a bold accessory, such as red gloves and a colorful scarf.
- Do welcome the next trend. It's the best over-the-counter youth prescription.
- Don't rely on mirrors alone. If the clothes feel good, you look good.
- Don't wear clothes that wear you.
- Do learn how to walk. When you enter a room, people should feel the undertow. The more calories you burn when you walk, the taller you look.

"My philosophy has always been French style is a state of mind. As a Frenchwoman, I have always believed this," said Ms. Vienne.

"Think of clothes as accessories to a great attitude," she said. "If you have that, all you really need to look elegant are five essential pieces."

Ms.Vienne's own list includes: a soft, black turtleneck, classic jeans, a long fringed scarf, a sensational pair of shoes and a V-neck cardigan.

Down-to-earth, blue collar clothes create new fashion statement

From Harvard Square to Berkeley, hip "twentysomethings" are suiting up in industrial gear: gas station attendant's shirts, plumber's overalls, janitor's uniforms and other working-class regalia, complete with embroidered patches announcing that you are, say, "Mike" from "Exxon" ... or perhaps "Ed" from "maintenance."

What's behind fashion's new work ethic? Some say it's the latest expression of the Nineties' down-to-earth, anti-fashion trend that began with grunge, moved to hip hop and now has progressed to clothes inspired by the factory floor and the mechanic's shop. It's also, to many young people, an ironic commentary on the realities of the Nineties economy. But even with such serious socioeconomic roots, this is a fad that is meant to be fun.

To get the industrial look right, it has to be authentic. At first, some young would-be pump jockeys haunted the thrift shops in search of the perfect gas company zipper jacket or monogrammed shirt. But lately, the coolest proponents of blue collar chic have been creating their own fashion statements — and wearing their own monograms. That's why retailers specializing in clothing and uniforms for service and industrial workers, are suddenly finding themselves catering to a new type of clientele. These customers don't worry that much about whether the shirt will hold up through 200 industrial washings (although it will), but they do care a lot about the relative merits of a patch that says "Roto Rooter" vs. one reading "AAA."

These retailers offer a veritable smorgasbord of proletarian pret-a-porter: industrial shirts, in long- or short-sleeved versions which come in a variety of colors; Ike-style jackets (the waist-length, zip-front toppers favored by car mechanics, meter readers and washing machine repairmen) in lined and unlined versions; and a large variety of overalls and work pants to make the wardrobe complete. All the clothes are industrial-strength as well as industrial-style, with reinforced seams, heavy-duty buttons and snaps, long shirttails and full cut for ease of movement on the job (real or imaginary).

Who knows, today's custom work shirt could become the thrift shop find of 2020.

Gold jewelry is magical for the fall fashion season

With its glimmer and gleam, real gold in 14-, 18- or 22-karat illuminates every fashion ensemble, magically transforming every occasion into an enchanting event. Pictured here in high karat gold, an alluring choker with a matching bracelet, textured earrings and an intricately detailed ring turn a velvet evening dress into a spellbinding look. Other treasures include tri-color gold bangles, whimsical gold charms, feminine gold heart-shaped earrings, and "old world" inspired antique-finish gold link necklaces. When purchasing gold jewelry, according to the World Gold Council, always buy from a reputable dealer and look for the karat mark and the manufacturer's trademark stamped on each piece.

Pearls return and add femine accents

Beautiful cultured pearls are among today's hottest fashion accessories. What's old is what's new, as multi-strand pearl necklaces make a comeback. Even basic strands are getting an updated and versatile look by additions of clasps and charms mixed with gold. Longer-length strands are very "in." Shapes vary from perfectly round to tear-shape, while tints range from white and pale pink to gold, blue, silver and black.

Cultured pearls, unlike imitation or faux pearls, are grown by oysters — just as the very rare natural pearls are — but with an assist from humans. Here, from the experts at the Cultured Pearl Association of America, are some tips on what to look for when buying cultured pearls:

- Lustre: A combination of surface brilliance and a deep seated glow. The lustre of a good quality pearl should be bright and you should be able to see your own reflection clearly on the surface.
- Cleanliness: The absence of disfiguring spots, bumps or cracks on the surface of a pearl.
- Color: The color should be even and not spotty or blotchy.
- Shape: The more symmetrical the pearl, the greater value it will hold. Baroque pearls, which are asymmetrical in shape, are interesting in their own right but often cost far less than round pearls.
- Size: Cultured pearls can run smaller than one millimeter for tiny seed pearls or as large as 20 millimeters for a big South Sea pearl, with an average size of seven to seven and a half millimeters.

Man-made imitation pearls, may often look quite close to the real thing. The easiest way to tell the difference between sophisticated imitations and the real McCoy is with the "tooth" test, says Devin Macnow of the Cultured Pearl Association. "Slowly rub the pearl across the front teeth," instructs Macnow. "If the pearl feels a little gritty, then you are the proud owner of cultured or natural pearls. However, if the pearl feels smooth, then you can bet that it is an imitation."

They say imitation is the sincerest form of flattery. Maybe so, but few things give the wearer a sense of assurance and elegance as does a piece of genuine cultured pearl jewelry, many stylish women agree.

Cultured pearls add a feminine, romantic accent to any ensemble.

Fall and winter fashions feature four "moo

"Gangster grays" combine masculine and feminine elements. Hats and scarves accessorize the look with a femine flair.

By Vena Coco (Fashion consultant)

The fashion direction for fall '94 represents a variety of styles. Choices, options, diversity are the hallmark of the season. Skirts and pants are equally dominant – lengths and fullness of either being of personal preference. Soft silhouettes, knits and sweater dressing are favored for their comfort and ease.

Four themes seem to be capturing the fashion stage, each of them comprised of a myriad of looks suitable for varied lifestyles. These different moods range from sophisticated, more "structured styling to casual, rugged chic; and softened military looks to mismatched vintage couture."(Accent Magazine, Feb., 1991) There is also a gamut of colors, including berry reds, hunter green, wine, deep grays, browns and, of course, black.

"Gangster grays"

Touches of the '30s and '40s characterize this mood with a contrast of masculine and feminine elements. Jackets are structured and slightly fitted with long skirts or unconstructured in menswear patterns with soft pants. The feminine elements are provided by the accessories: felt hats, gray tone pearls in chokers or long strands, hematite and silver pendants, brooches and pins, as well as cuff links and oversized watches. Fabrics in this mood would include wool flannels, tweeds, pinstripes and herringbone. The palette ranging in all shades of gray from charcoal to gunmetal.

"Vintage"

This is an eclectic mood: finds from the '40s through the '50s revamped with a contemporary slant. Day and evening fabrics are mixed: There are tweed and boucles, mixed with panne and silk velvets, lace and embroideries. Here is a place for lots of color: burnt orange, Russian red, Nordic grape. Within this theme, accessories have a retro feeling: cut crystal and rhinestones, cabochons, marquisette and antique replicas add the finishing touch.

Rustic colors and fine fabrics create the wonderful "Vintage" mood.

It's been said that many women don't merely shop for black, but collect it. The virtues of black become its rationale: "It's stylish, it's slimming, it's always safe when you don't know what else to wear." However, it can become boring and when that becomes the case, add a shot of color and it suddenly takes on new life. Color with black as a backdrop can become more than just an accent. It can play up your best body or facial feature.

d" themes to enhance various lifestyles

"Military"

There are looks here for both the younger woman as well as the more sophisticated. Fitted, cropped jackets, skinny ribbed sweaters, trousers with multi-functional pockets are all part of the trend. Peacoat style blazers or full coats with large brass buttons over long or short skirts are omnipresent. Khaki and navy are the classic colors to be found here. Accessories include large brass or antique-finished gold neck and ears, medallions, coins and heraldic motifs.

Navy and khaki colors dominate the "Military" look with brassy buttons and jewelry.

"European rustic"

Inspired by the European countryside, this look is a balance of rugged softness in layered looks which at first glance is seemingly haphazard, yet is totally thought out and put together. The silhouette is rather loose and lean in varying lengths and is basically made up of sweater dressing. You'll see hand-knits, thermal knits, blanket weaves and textured yarns. Colors are neutral: heathered oatmeal, milkweed and naturals earth brown are predominant. Accessories in this mood are of natural-colored beads for chokers, pendants or braided and textured leathers, drop earrings of stone and clay.

"European rustic" fashion takes the "peasant look" in a new direction.

Faux furs

Luxurious and affordable faux fur accessories immediately lend a touch of class and inimitable style.

These unique faux fur embellishments are simultaneously practical and economical.

They are also an eloquent fashion statement not only for style but for a humane alternative to the luxury of fur.

Jeans

Blue jeans have never faded in popularity. All it takes is a jacket to dress them up. They share the limelight with such wardrobe gems as a great wool cardigan or camel-hair coat as a category of clothes that never go out of style. They easily take on the lifestyle of the woman who wants them.

Hats

A must for the season. There is one for every shape face and profile. Wide brim hats are very popular.

Cleaning properly adds longer life to clothes

These days, adding to your wardrobe can take a big bite out of the household budget. That's why it's more important than ever to know how to protect your investment. To help keep your clothes looking like new for seasons to come, follow these tips from fabric care experts:

- When possible, avoid over-exposing your clothes to dry-cleaning chemicals. Test simply constructed garments for colorfastness to see if they can be washed. Place a hidden seam or hem on a paper towel, then apply a little water with a cotton swab to see if color bleeds.
- Keep dependable cotton basics from yellowing. Wash in cool water with pH-balanced cold water detergent.
- Washable silk, polyester and cotton blouses are essentials that can partner with just about any fashion trend. Reduce the wear and tear on these favorites by using the gentle cycle, which cleans well without intense agitation.
- Apply perfume before you dress, since it can stain fabrics.
- To help prevent shrinkage and color fading, remember that hot water and hot dryers can damage many of your favorite fabrics.
- To help stockings resist runs, apply a spray starch very lightly after drying.

Get a leg up on fashion with slenderizing hosiery

A new hosiery has an extended control top designed to slenderize tummy, hips and thighs. Local stores can help women get a leg up on fashion for less, these days.

Surveys show that one of the most exciting, fastest selling categories is body-shaping intimate apparel. Leading food, drug and mass merchandise stores are now offering a new pantyhose — for half the price of most department store brands. These pantyhose features an extended control top designed to provide extra slimming for the tummy, while gently shaping the hips and thighs and caressing the legs.

The pantyhose give budget-minded shoppers the same shaping benefit department store customers have come to appreciate, and they come in a variety of shades.

Cold weather and comfortable wool are winter complements

Here's news you may want to slip on for comfort. Sweaters are replacing the jacket. In fact, knits are experiencing a sizable increase in popularity at all levels from sweatshirts to hand-knit sweaters. Even better news is that more of these great knits are made of 100% American wool or wool-rich blends.

One reason for this growth in knits is that consumers today have come to rely on knits for comfort. As "sweats" became a weekend staple, most Americans found themselves less willing to put on restrictive clothing for the rest of the week.

Designers are responding to this desire for easy-to-wear pieces. They've turned more and more to great looking knits that blend comfort with real style — the kind of clothes you can wear for business or pleasure, season after season.

These facts from fashion experts may help shape your new wardrobe.

• Sweaters of 100% American wool and wool blends come in a variety of weights and styles. Choose lofty textured knits for the rugged outdoors, lightweight fine-gauge knits for the newest layered looks, or something in between. No matter what your lifestyle and wardrobe demands, you'll find a knit to fit in American wool.

• When it comes to knits, wool has always been a favorite. Wool has tremendous resilience. Pull it, stretch it, and it will spring back into shape. No wonder wool jersey is considered the ultimate traveler, whether styled in fashionable dresses or casual separates.

• Wool sweaters are classics, too. For many, the appeal goes back to childhood. A favorite wool sweater can truly last for decades, bringing with each wearing not only warmth but pleasant memories. Because wool takes dye so well, colors stay vibrant. That's one of the reasons wool sweaters make such great gifts for the holidays.

• Wool/cotton blends bring together two great natural fibers. In combination, wool and cotton give you an entirely new feeling in a sweater. Cotton sweaters have a tendency to lose color and to stretch and sag. Add wool to the yarn mix, and you eliminate these problems, while gaining a sweater that works well for all seasons.

• Most wool sweaters can be washed, some in the machine. Manufacturer's care instructions should be followed carefully.

Wool sweaters look great and are easy to wear for just about any occasion.

Shop for quality and value as well as style in clothing

By Robert E. Swift

How keen is your shopping IQ when buying clothing and home textile products? Most shoppers know that "value" means far more than just price — that quality, style, fit, design and color are all important when selecting these products.

Quality is probably the most important element in getting your money's worth, however, and there are specific things to look for that can make you a smarter clothing and home textiles shopper.

Check for strong seams.

Light should not show through easily when a seam is gently stretched.

Check buttons and buttonholes.

Are buttonhole edges tightly sewn? Are buttons secure, and do they have adequate space behind them for easy buttoning?

Check binding on cut edges and seams.

They should be bound well enough to prevent fraying.

Check for deep hems and seams.

Is there adequate fabric for at least minor lengthening or enlarging of a garment?

Check for different materials in the same garment.

For instance, a suede collar on a cloth garment may require more expensive "spot" cleaning.

Check care labels.

They tell you whether a garment should be laundered, dry cleaned or washed by hand.

Check labels that identify the country where the product was made.

Sizes of foreign-made garments can vary or be stated in unfamiliar terms, whereas Americans usually find that U.S.-made garments provide more consistent sizing and dependable fit.

Federal law requires that country-of-origin labels be affixed securely and conspicuously to textile products. That's good, because research confirms that American consumers overwhelmingly believe U.S.-made clothing provides better quality, value, fit and style than foreign-made clothing — particularly garments from the Far East. The high correlation of dry-cleaning complaints associated with foreign-made garments supports this confidence.

Don't assume imports cost less

In terms of price, some consumers believe that imported clothing costs less. Since 1985, however, the average price that consumers have paid for imported clothing has either exceeded or equaled the average price of U.S.-made clothing.

Many consumers also recognize another benefit from buying U.S.-made textile products: It helps save U.S. manufacturing jobs, and studies show that manufacturing jobs are particularly critical to a healthy economy. When you can help save a job and get top quality and value, both your pocketbook and the nation's economy are winners.

Robert E. Swift is executive director of the Crafted with Pride in U.S.A. Council, headquartered in New York City.

Quality is probably the most important element in getting your money's worth, however, and there are specific things to look for that can make you a smarter clothing and home textiles shopper.

Colors and styles help project a professional image

Although dress codes differ at every company, Tina Sutton, a national fashion consultant for a leading off-price women's career fashion store, provides these guidelines for understanding and improving a career wardrobe:

Think professional.

A solid-colored suit (black or taupe) is the most professional outfit a woman can wear and should be the basis of a career wardrobe. A bright blouse or jacket, paired with a traditional black or taupe skirt is fashionable, but may be unacceptable for certain jobs. Know how adventurous you can be before investing in new fashion colors.

Select clothes that fit.

When purchasing clothes for work, look for figure-flattering styles. Tight clothes are inappropriate, while clothes that are too big make you look frumpy. An outfit that fits perfectly will project a professional image.

Mix and match.

Mixing and matching makes career dressing easy and inexpensive. Most women own a skirted suit in a neutral color (black or taupe). Try a coordinating print or solid cream blouse with it. Then, up-date your wardrobe with another suit that can be mixed and matched with the first one (a black and white check or navy suit). Add a pair of pants or a long printed skirt that works with both jackets. You can get several combinations without spending a fortune.

Accessorize.

To update your career wardrobe inexpensively, stock up on accessories. For a polished look, add button earrings or pearls, a matching necklace and belt to a basic suit. At off-price stores you can buy an accessory wardrobe that completes every look.

Snappy styles accentuate fall fashion for both long and short hair

What's an easy way to cure the hairstyle blues and keep on top of the hottest new styles this fall? Go layered!

According to professional hair-stylists, styles will emphasize the "layered look," with shorter, shaggier bangs and soft framing layers around the face. "Layers can be spiked, fringed, and texturized — hair should be either very short or very long," explains Professional Hairstylist Jacob Neal from the Jacob Neal Salon in Columbus, Ohio.

To achieve the new fall hair fashions, stylists will be taking a more "individualized approach" to cutting hair. Each person's bone structure, hair type, and personality will be taken into consideration when forming layers.

"No two haircuts will be the same," Neal predicts. "Stylists will be using their creative license to make these cuts more personalized."

Once you've got your new layered cut, achieving the look at home is easy. The key is to focus on the right combination of tools and products.

For short layered cuts, use a spray gel or a soft hold gel on wet hair. Blow dry, using your fingers to lift the hair away from your scalp. Then, for added volume, use heated styling clips. After you blow dry, place the clips on the front, top and crown of your head. Let the clips cool and remove them, then style with your fingers, and finish with hair spray.

Longer layers are just as simple to maintain. First, apply a styling product—mousse for finer hair, gel for thicker hair—to the roots. Blow dry as usual. Then, for added versatility and drama, use a steam hairsetter. The steam setting helps give hair extra bend and holding power to keep your style fresh all day. For evening when you want your hair up, the steam hairsetter can help keep a sophisticated style from drooping on the dance floor.

Just as clothes this fall are defined by layers, so is hair. Brave the chill in the air and the changing season with a layered look that's sure to turn a few heads.

Less dressy take lead in tress styles today with less curl and more body

The time has come, hair care experts say, for a refreshing change of mane. After seasons of serious hairdressing, coifs are loosening up for fall.

According to the nine award-winning hair stylists from across the country, the grunge-inspired straight and narrow has been the inspiration for the latest styles that have been cropping up for both long and short cuts.

Hair color and highlights are still popular across the country, especially soft highlights around the face and bright, playful shades.

The days of perming for style are gone. The major consensus across the country is to perm for support and body, rather than curl. Permed tresses are blown out for smoother, sleeker looks with lots of body and bounce.

Whatever style you select, you can get a powerful hold from gels. Another help can be hair sprays with nutrients for natural-looking hold that lasts and lets you comb through without disturbing the style.

"Scene" on the streets of fashionable places is the glossy wet look. One way to get it is with gel on wet hair. Once the hair is styled into place, it's protected from the humidity. A light misting of hair spray can control split ends and give hair a glow.

Hair stylists also offer these ideas for great looking hair:

- Adding color, especially highlights, can give hair extra shine for months at a time.
- Using moisturizing conditioners under the dryer can also offer additional shine.
- Rinsing with cool water after shampooing can give hair a luminescent look.
- Diluted apple cider vinegar, applied to hair after conditioning, can remove most residue and leave hair shiny and clean.

Your hair dressing specialist can help you decide which of today's styles look best on you.

The "bob" bounces back into fashion for the '90s

Hairstyles, like fashion, go through cycles, and with the current trend for shorter hair, the bob once again is the haircut of the moment. All the rage in the twenties, the bob was the signature style of film star Louise Brooks. In the eighties, Olympic gold medal skater, Dorothy Hamill's wedged version created a sensation. And now, supermodel Linda Evangelista gives the cut a nineties update, topping her auburn bob with Dutch-boy bangs.

The versatile cut can be layered, graduated or worn in one length. For styling options, consider these helpful hints from the experts:

- For volume, spritz bangs and hair ends with a light setting lotion, then roll hair sections under, toward the scalp with rollers. To give hair extra lift around the face, roll bangs under to one side. Remove rollers and finger comb to fluff or brush smooth.
- To create curls, use rollers on damp hair. For soft waves, use rollers on dry hair.
- Hair length and style determine roller size. To get a fashionable look choose different size rollers: mini or medium for curls, large for waves and jumbo for body.

Western boots are sought for comfort and fashion

The current boom in western fashion is showing no signs of slowing down, with sales of western boots in particular setting a record pace.

Boots are becoming basic silhouette in both men's and women's wardrobes. They're a natural complement to the casual and western looks which are currently hot fashion styles, according to footwear buyer Kurt Pentonke.

"People are spending a lot more time in jeans and denim shirts now," Pentonke said. "Anytime denim is a hot item, boots are a great way to accessorize."

"Fashion designers in the U.S. and Europe are playing up western in their apparel collections, and we're responding," said Bob Catlett, director of style and product development for a major manufacturer.

While boots are unquestionably fashionable, sales are driven by yet another factor: comfort. Advances in design have made boots more comfortable to wear today than ever before – and consumers are catching on.

Consumers may need the help of trained sales personnel who can answer questions on boot construction, finish, fit and care to make the best boot buys.

"With so many people buying boots today, many of them for the first time, we want to make sure they know how their boots are made, how they are supposed to fit and how to take care of them," said Acme Boot Care director, Mike Duncan.

"Our customers need to know how to care for boots made of everything from cowhide to the more exotic skins such as lizard, snake, ostrich and elk," Duncan added.
